DETAILED ACTION

The Amendment filed on January 31, 2003 has been acknowledged.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-8 and 10-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Tomikawa et al. (US 6,039,441) in view of Aono et al. (US 6,471,321).

Tomikawa et al. discloses the claimed features of the invention including:

- a replaceable ink container (1, Fig. 1a) for providing ink to an inkjet printing system (Fig. 5b) and method for forming a seal (Fig. 1b), the inkjet printing system having a replaceable printhead (21) and a receiving station (27) for receiving the replaceable ink container, the receiving station having a fluid inlet (24) and a sealing structure (22), the replaceable ink container comprising:

- a reservoir (2) defining a fluid outlet (11) and a sealing surface (surface of 14) proximate the fluid outlet (Fig. 1b);

Art Unit: 2863

- a sealing material (ink in 2) contained within the reservoir for wetting the sealing surface (Fig. 1a, 1b), the sealing material between the sealing surface and the sealing structure (column 4, lines 25-26) acting to seal defects between the sealing surface and the sealing structure (ink meniscus between surface of 14 and 22, Fig. 1b),

- the reservoir contains a quantity of ink (Fig. 1a),

- the sealing surface is configured to be sufficiently wettable such that the sealing surface is wet by the sealing material (wet by ink, column 4, lines 25-26),

- a storage reservoir having a capillary storage material (3) disposed therein for retaining ink.

However, Tomikawa et al. does not disclose the following claimed features:

- the sealing material including solid particles held in a suspension,
- the solid particles are pigment particles,
- the solid particles are carbon black particles,
- the suspension is a dispersant.

Nevertheless, Aono et al. discloses an ink containing black pigments (column 10, line 7) and a dispersant (column 10, line 8) for the purpose of forming ink meniscus (column 10, line 10).

Art Unit: 2863

Therefore, it would have been obvious to a person having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide Tomikawa et al. with a pigment-based ink as disclosed by Aono et al. for the purpose of forming ink meniscus.

Response to Arguments

2. Applicant's arguments have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
